

Manzo Nagano

- ▲ Manzo Nagano (1855 1923) was the first Japanese person to officially immigrate to Canada, in 1877.
- ▲ The Canadian Mount Manzo Nagano, near Owikeno Lake, BC was named in his honour.

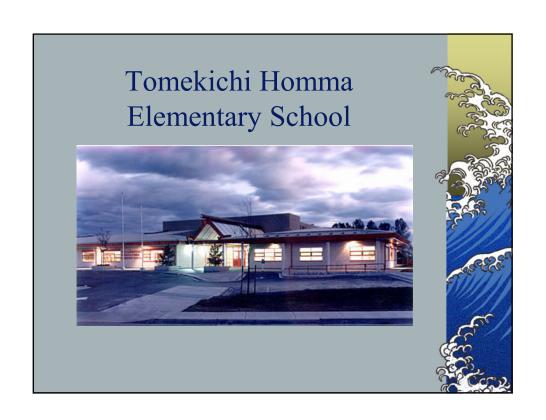

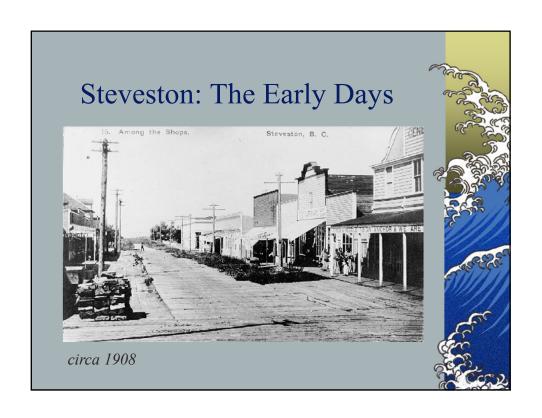

Tomekichi Homma

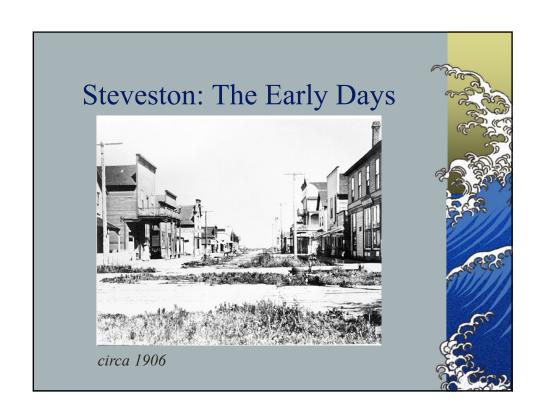

- ▲ Tomekichi Homma (1865-1945) came to Canada in 1883
- ▲ Formed the Fisherman's Association, Gyosha Dantai, helped create the first Japanese Language school, and started the first Japanese daily newspaper, the "Canada Shimpo"
- In 1899 1901 he fought for the Japanese right to vote in Canada, but lost. In 1949, his son, Seiji, was witness to the BC Legislature giving Japanese Canadians the right to vote, four years after he died.

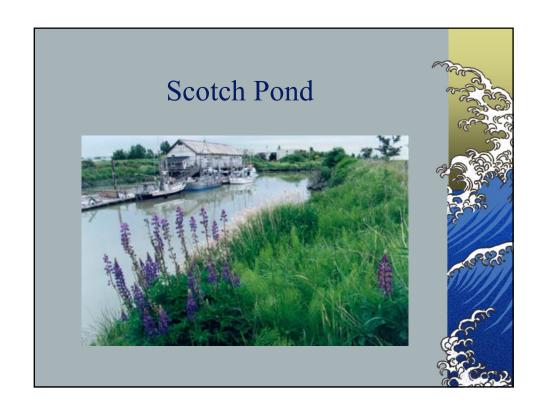

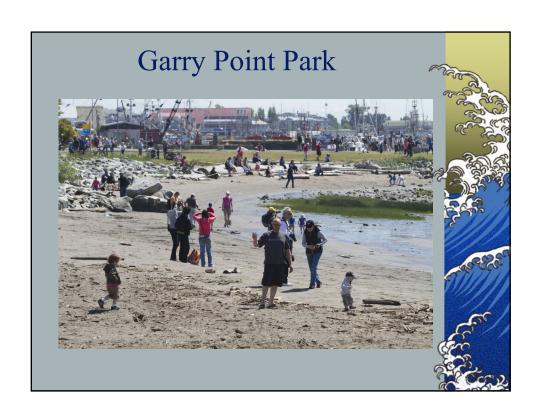

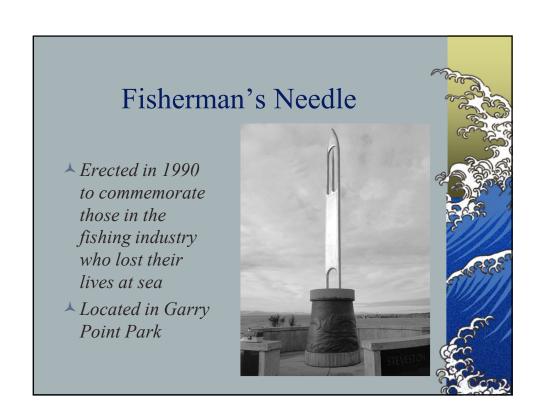

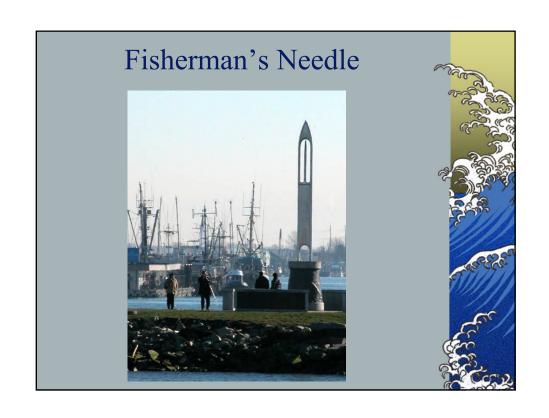

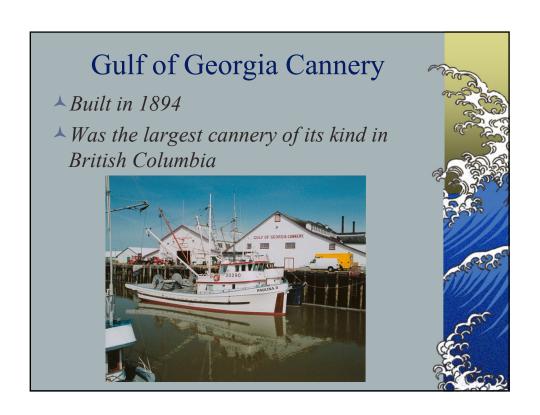

Gihei Kuno

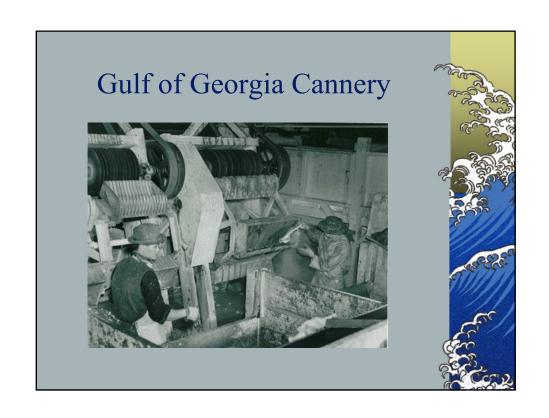

- ▲ Gihei Kuno (1854-1917) visits Canada in 1888 and returns to Wakayama-ken to recruit fellow villagers to settle in the village of Steveston.
- ▲ Steveston becomes the second largest Japanese Canadian settlement in Canada before WW II.

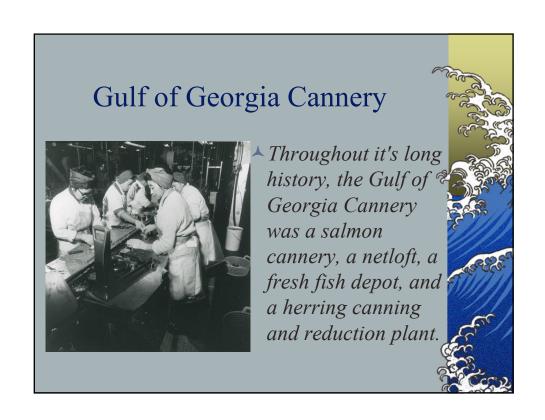

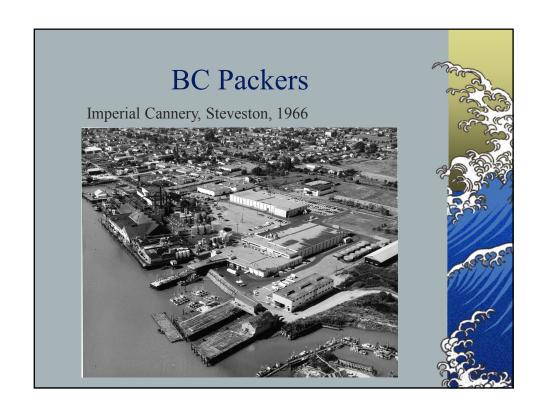

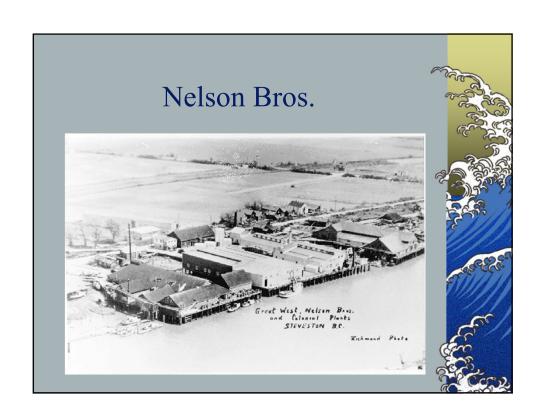

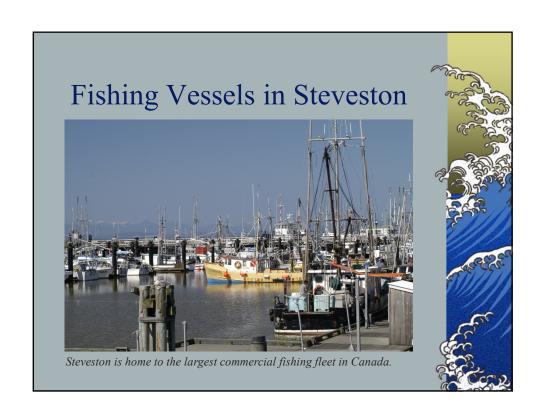

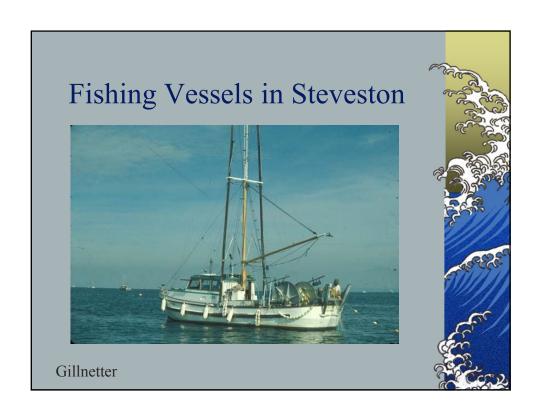

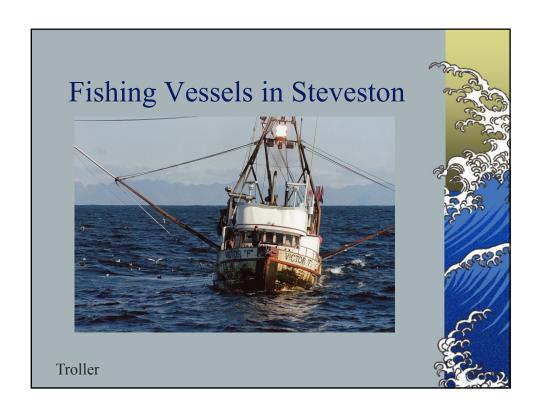

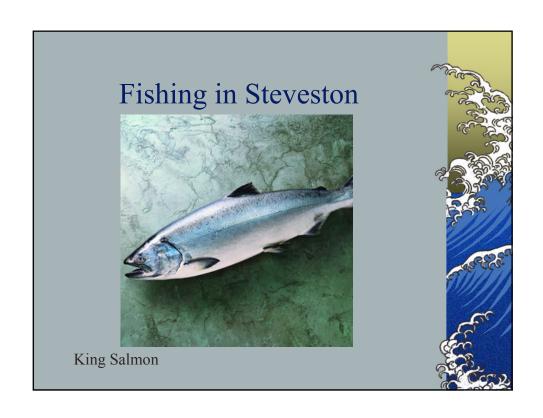

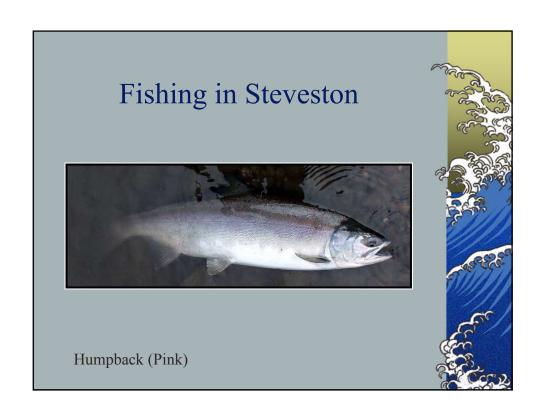

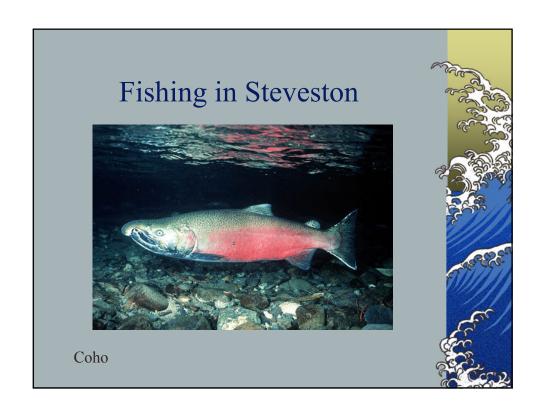

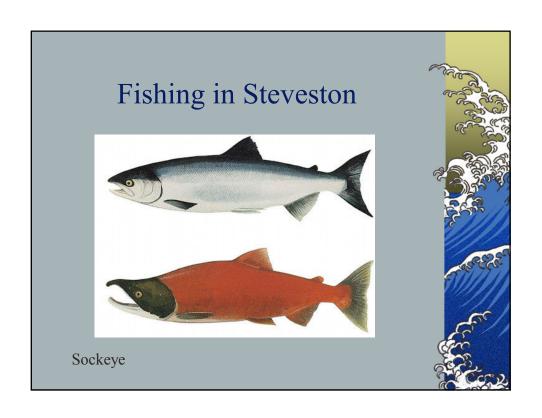

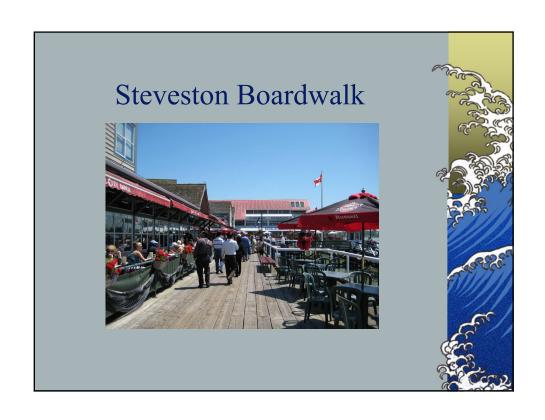

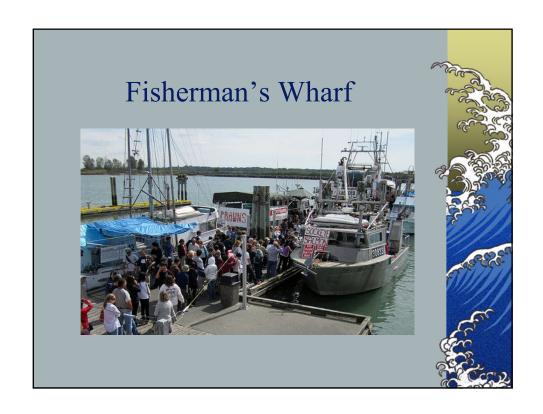

Japanese Fishermen's Benevolent Building

- ▲ Built by the Japanese Fishermen's Benevolent Association in 1900
 - ▲ the first hospital in Richmond and the primary health care provider for Steveston.

Japanese Fishermen's Benevolent Building

- ▲ In January 2010, the structure was moved into the park behind Steveston Museum
 - ▲ Will be restored over the next two years to exhibit the history of the Japanese-Canadian community in Steveston.

